Dear District and CCN Residents:

The District is pleased to present its seventh annual Consumer Confidence Report (CCR). This report, while published in June 2013, reflects the calendar year 2012. This report, along with previous reports, dating back to 2006 when the District took over as the water supplier for Emerald Bay is also available for your review at the District webpage.

The Consumer Confidence Report is a state mandated report and by law must contain certain subject matter as prescribed by the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality (TCEQ). It is intended to insure that consumers of public water are informed as to the condition of their public water supply. Required information relating to public education, where your water comes from, public participation opportunities, and testing results supplied by the District and the TCEQ are included in this report.

You will also notice that the “Results of Testing” section of this report contains test data from years 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, and 2011. Please note that the TCEQ does not perform all tests annually. Data from the years 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010 and some data collected in 2011 is holdover data. The areas that show the year December 2011 and the whole year 2012 is updated data and/or newly added data.

Respectfully submitted,

William F. Harris
